I am able to purchase the iPad for DODD if the consumer qualifies with this equipment under the coding AVN, AAE, FVN, FAE, EVN, EAE.

I have bought many types of the iPad. Some have requested 16gb WIFI, others have requested the 64gb WIFI 3G. The most popular is the 32gb WIFI.

Most have requested iTunes to go with the iPad. I prefer to purchase the iTunes cards as needed for the applications that they use. I have used the "gifted" option to send the iTunes to the email address of the consumer and they download the iTunes that was purchased. This method consumes more of my time and I need to charge for my time. If you figure which iTunes you need and the approximate amount (they do charge tax for the iTunes) I purchase the iTunes gift cards and give that amount to the consumer. If you work with a therapist or classroom instructor they might have suggestions for the iTunes that would benefit your child. I am including a list of iTunes that I have purchased for consumers. If you Google the iTunes you can find out what the iTunes is and how it will work best with your child.

For accessories I highly recommend the Otterbox, which is a protection device for the iPad. I use the Otterbox personally on my phone and have benefited from the protection it provides. I would recommend purchasing an additional year of protection through the "Apple Care". You would need to read over the coverage on that to determine if that would fit your needs. Carrying cases, stands, car chargers, additional 10' cords, stylus (not recommended by Apple), screen protector (not recommended by Apple), a device that connects to a wheelchair to hold the iPad, keyboards have all been items that I have purchased for various consumers to go along with their iPad. If you are unfamiliar with any Apple products I can provide a "goodie card" which allows the consumer or family to go to the Apple store and have them set up the iPad with them. I will need to know that you would like to have the "goodie card" before submitting the bid.

The Apple store at the Summit Mall also provides workshops for you if you have any questions on how their product works.

These are some of the itunes that have been purchased for some consumers:
